

Many people keep dogs and cats as companions. Discuss the advantages and disadvantages of pet ownership for the animals involved and for the community as a whole.

Sitting in the park, looking at the different parts of that and finding the interesting and pretty prevalent scenes in which many people particularly youth are playing or walking with their lovely pets not with friends or families. Keeping animals, nowadays, is remarkably growing among majority especially those who have seemingly more free time to devote it for caring them or enjoying with them—as a hobby. Whilst there is no longer sophisticated job to convince animal owners that this sort of activity is affiliated with numerous by-products both for them and also for their animals, majority just would rather look at the half full glass.

Preserving animals in particular dogs not just contains various perks for their owners, but also can provide the decent livable conditions for pets. It goes without saying that, many people tend to hold the animals because of their protecting and guiding role thereby they can live in safety and security with their pets.

Furthermore, with regard to animals, living next to the human, animals nurture with the high quality of feeding as well as health care. At this day and age, there are huge attentions for the pets, as much as it is easy to see how many products are available in each grocery store mere for feeding and caring them. By and large, these people who stand in this category allege that living with dogs and cats is full of elation, joyfulness and excitement.

There are, however, also the negative aspects of keeping animals. Some people are of the strong opinion that holding animals in the small apartment or even cage in which they do not allow to live based on their instincts is an inhumane act. Many innocent beautiful birds die just because of depriving them from the flight and imprisoning them in the cage. On the other hand, these days we frequently see the limitation for animal's everywhere. For instance, there are strict rules in some living complex in which keeping animals is illegal due to the sound disturbing for neighbors and sometimes attacking behavior of them.

To sum up, there are pros and cons in this issue, none-withstanding, I reckon that the merits greatly outweigh the disadvantages. Making people euphoric and keeping them away from the loneliness, is the most indispensable positive aspect of having pets.

Comment: The essay might sound elongated for a conventional for a conventional IELTS exam. This good sample essay is benefitted from complex structures ; this complexity does not impede the general flow of understanding but has helped to the strength of the text. What seems to be the room for the improvement is the over-use of the transitions and chunks.
